Future Health

Business — Technology — Minds

Leadership in the Digital Modern era is a tremendous challenge.

The speed of technology adoption and progression in the commercialisation of information through data has never been greater than today.

An exemplary result:
The average lifespan of a S&P500 listed company has decreased from 61 years in 1955 to 15 years in 2015.

In this “accelerated acceleration”, leaders need constant updates on the latest trends in tech and business, opinions by trusted thought leaders within their given fields and direct exchange with game-changing players.

With the gannaca global think tank group we deliver rare & refined perspectives of the health industry’s future.

Are you seriously interested in taking a look? Then, be our guest.

This is a 90-120 min. private lecture by gannaca founder and CIO Christopher P. Peterka based on more than 1.000 personal in-depth interviews with decision-makers conducted by him in 50+ countries since the year 2002. What he has found is nothing less than an entirely new operating system for our world, fuelled by data.
